Love for the Beautiful.

The love for the beautiful which is in every heart clearly shows itself, we say, the Evening Wisconsin of September 19, in the notes related below:

As a resident on Milwaukee streets lady with a taste and talent for art was making a copy of a very beautiful picture. She or the picture had been moved the east near the window. Chancing to look up from her pleasant occupation, she discovered a little boy quite a manner. On the street, and there were a dozen children, every one gazing with unfeigned admiration at the beautiful picture. Their interest in it was so great that they were not ashamed to acknowledge that their presence was known. When those first on the ground arrived they had not moved away, their places would be taken by others, who, in passing, caught sight of the picture, and remained to admire it. For the greater part these children were of the one dictated class. The fact showed the common love for the beautiful which every one has to a greater or less extent.

MONETARY AND COMMERCIAL.

MONETARY.

NEW ORLEANS REPUBLICAN OFFICE, } Friday Evening, October 23, 1874. }

The money market continues quiet, with a fair demand for discounts at the banks, which are very little offering on the street. The business paper making, Good commercial names, known and endorsed, are in demand and run quite at 9@12 ⅌ cent per annum, and second grades 12@18 ⅌ cent. Very few transfers are consummated in any description, the demand is for any name, good or indifferent, and the occasional transactions reported in first class paper do not exceed 9 ⅌ cent. Rates, while nothing is done in second grade on which to base quotations.
